

The PGA is Changing How You Can Learn About Open Jobs

The PGA Career Services team believes evolution is necessary to continue to better meet members' needs. A recent change made is to begin the transition from the CareerLinks profile to the Job Seeker Profile. Here is a quick overview of the differences-

CAREERLINKS PROFILE	JOB SEEKER PROFILE
• Lengthy, detailed survey	• Five questions regarding Preferences
• Intricate tracking system based on experience and preferences	• Job Matching to Preferences
• You would only receive Job Notice if you were tracked	• You can view all Jobs on PGA.org at any time
Employer focused	Member focused

To create your new profile, log into PGA.org, go to your dashboard and then scroll all the way down to the section on Job Preferences. Please take a few short minutes to complete this job preference profile. There are only these questions to answer-

- Where are you in your search?
- Where would you like to work?
- What type of job are you seeking?
- What is your minimum salary requirement?
- Other preferences? (Seasonal/year-round)

Once you have entered your Job Preferences, the system creates a profile for you that matches open positions to your preferences. And every time you log into PGA.com, a list of jobs will pop up if any are open that meet your preferences.

Or you can search for any job that is on the Board. Again, log into PGA.org and click on Jobs. You can filter by title in the search bar or by Section or location on the left-hand side.

We know there will be growing pains and transition is never perfect. Here is where we need your help—if you encounter something that you feel is not working well for you as a job seeker or as an employer, please reach out to me and give me your feedback. We can only evolve in the right direction with your input.
